KNOXVILLE, TENN., Aug. 22.—This morning two men met with a horrible death six miles from this city. John McClain had been digging a well and hired a young man named George Guinn to help finish it. The two men went to work at 8 o'clock this morning, Guinn going to the bottom of the well.
He had been digging only a few minnaes when he fell over, McClain went to his assistance, but before he could him was also overcome. There were no other persons about the place except the children. Before the neighbors could be summoned both men were dead. Alexander Nelson was let down by a rope, but was drawn up immediately, almost dead. The two bodies were finally brought up by means of hooks. Guinn was unmarried. McClain leaves a widow and children.

A Lost Sloop.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22 .- E. W. Bullinger, of No. 75 Fulton street, this city, offers a reward of $500 for the first information sent him before Sept. 1 as to the whereabouts of the sloop Mystery, of New Haven, or of her crew. It is feared here that the sloop has been blown to sea by a heavy gale.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 22.—About twenty

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 22.—About twenty nembers of the New Haven Yacht club went to Port Jefferson, L. I., shortly after 11 o'clock to-night in search of the crew of the ill fated sloop Mystery. The shore will be patrolled from that port to Montauk point. The pre-valling opinion is that the bodies must seek that shore, as there was a strong northeast wind for some days after the Mystery left port. The Billiard Champions.

revenue cutter Manhattan arrived here today from Ogdensburg en route to Philadelphia for repairs. A sister ship of the Ludwig, now so long overdue, arrived here to-day from Antwerp, having left that port a month later than the missing vessel. CAPERS AT CAPE MAY.

The Light Infantry Boys Enjoying Themselves Immensely at the Seashore.

The Trip to the Breakwater and the Dude Drill Yesterday.

A "Walled" Tent Previded for the Hospital and the Doctor Forced Under the Canvas.

The Grand Ball at the Stockton-A Lozing Summer for Watering Places,

Special Dispatch. CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 22.- The trip of the Light Infantry, on the steamer Great Republic, to the Delaware breakwater, was greatly enjoyed, and the "dude" drill was a huge success. Everybody thoroughly enjoyed it, or seemed to. The burlesque arrest and mock trial of Capt. Harrison H. Dingman, judge advocate of the corps, this morning was an amusing incident of the forenoon. During the afternoon a base ball team from the Light Infantry played a game with a crack Cape May nine, winning a victory by a score of 10 to 2. To-night the proprietors of Congress Hall gave the boys a reception and hop after the "dude" drill and concert. To-morrow will be a day of rest. The target shoot and prize drill will occur Friday or Saturday.

"We are having a splendid time," the military visitors say with one accord.

"We are trying to make the boys feel at home," say the citizens.

That tells the story. The citizens have succeeded admirably in making the boys feel at home, and the boys are buoyant with complacent enjoyment. Their good nature and willingness to please and be pleased is in-fectious; or is it that they have caught the prevailing infection from the citizens? At any rate, there is a charming mutuality about the situation.

Nearly every member of the company brought along a masquerade suit of some sort, but they were kept dark until yesterday. Those which created most attention and created the greatest amusement were worn by Robert H. Wade, J. F. Grant, Will Scufferle, and Georgo Dietrich. Wade and Grant personated giddy girls, and Scufferle and Dietrich lah-de-da young men. They drove around the streets during the afternoon and evening hours in stylish dog carts, making a decided sensation. Other costumes were to be seen, but none were so conspicuously picturesque as those were to seen the streets.

The Washington Light Infantry passed The Washington Light Infantry passed Sunday, Sunday night, and Monday in peace and quietness, getting acquainted, getting rested, and rioting in the splendid surf that has made Cape May celebrated; but Monday night the spirit of frolic seized upon the more frivolous members, and they cut up innumerable pranks.

While the eyes of the poetical sentinels were glued upon the troubled ocean at their feet, watching breaker after breaker rear their crested heads high into the air and then hurl themselves furiously upon the white sand, only to sullenly slip back into the ocean's bosom, and their thoughts were wandering back to the girls they left behind, the mischievous spirits stole silently from their mischievous spirits stole silently quarters and enjoyed a rare frolic. They made their presence felt if not seen about the camp that night in divers ways. One of the camp that night in divers ways. One of the pranks indulged in was to barricade the hospital tent with about a cord of vases, urns and statuary removed from the Congress Hall lawn. These pieces of pottery were piled as high as a man's head in front of poor McArdlo's tent, effectively blocking his passage when he went to turn back the flap to go to his breakfast in the morning, and he was reduced to the undignified expedient of was reduced to the undignified expedient of boy crawls into a circus—under the canvas.

The ladies are quite enamored of the gay visitors, and when they appear in their showy uniforms for dress parade the fair ones hold up their hands in mute signal of uncon-ditional surrender. The captors generally allow them to carry arms, however, feeling secure against insurrection. All they want is an understanding, and an understanding has been arrived at judging from the appearance of the brilliant procession of willing cap-

The reception and hop given the Infantry at the Stockton by Col. Cake last night was a decided success. Half of the population of the island was there, and the other half would have come but for the knowledge that they would be obliged to view the festivitied from back seats. There was music and dancing and feasting until a late hour Many of the ladles wore costly toilets, and all looked levely. The occasion was a gay and brilliant one.

The Stockton closes on the twenty-ninth for the season. The big hotels have not made for the season. The big hotels have not made any money this summer. The season opened with every promise of grand pecuniary re-turns. The month of July was quite profita-turns. The month of July was quite profitaso cold that thousands and tens of thousands who had been preparing to fit to the seaside for a breath of fresh air found the required freshness at home, and there they remained August, therefore, has turned out unprofit ably. From hotel men I learn that the sea-son has been disastrous almost at some of the usually popular resorts. Thanks to a well organized system of excursions, Atlantic tity organized system of excitrators, Atlantic city has been saved from loss, but at the expense of "tone." Hotels at Long Branch have lost money; Coney Island has turned out badly, and Saratoga has been made dismal by the lamentations of hotel proprietors.

The big hotels at Cape May are taking care of about 1,000 guests, or about 25 per cent, of the full capacity. The cottages, however, are very comfortably full, between 1,500 and 2,000 strangers preferring that life to bearding in hotels. A terrid September will do wenders for Cape May. At no point on the Jersey coast can there be found such bathing and for Cape May.

Shark fishing is the favorite divertissement of quite a number of people in this vicinity. One Louisville gentleman has captured fifteen this season, and he expects to add this season, and he expects to had have more to his string, at least before cold weather drives him and them away. Sharks abound in the sea hereabouts, but they never trouble the bathers. In fact they do not approach the shore at all during bathing hours, having a wholesome fear of the strange beings they see disporting in the bring. The fishermen who make a business of catching sharks go away out beyond the piers, and then they are not always successful.

An informal gathering of the stay at home members of the Light Infantry corps was held at the armory last evening, between twenty-five and thirty members being pres-sent. The reception of the boys next Monday night was the principal thome of discussion, and after a general conversation on that subject and the distribution of men for the banquet and reception, the gathering dis-persed.
